DONORS' NIGHT AT GOULD

Donors' Night exercises will be held in William Bingham Gymnasium, Thursday evening, Dec. 13, at 7:45 o'clock. The play presented on this occasion will be "The Cross Stitch Heart," which will be coached by Miss Leavengood of the Department of Dramatics. This presentation is a sampler fantasy with an unusual feature presenting a sampler and quaint old fashioned costumes. A special feature of the evening's entertainment will be a selection by the girls' octet. All friends of the school are cordially invited to attend Donors' Night exercises.

WOODSTOCK SPECIAL TOWN MEETING GRANTS PERMISSION TO CONSTRUCT BLDG.

The Town of Woodstock has received a great deal of publicity during the past six months in connection with the various relief projects carried on in the town. As is often the case in situations such as these much of the publicity has been uncalculated for and it has been spread in the form of rumor or that characterizing individual "gossip." For various reasons the town has been divided into two factions one supporting improvements in the town for recreational and educational facilities, the other group lining up against all such improvements and a small minority spreading fallacious and erroneous propaganda about the work being done and those sponsoring it. Due to this fact it has been very difficult to get an unbiased report on the last town meeting held in Woodstock to reconsider a vote taken at a previous meeting. The first meeting was held Oct. 8. The town voted by a fair majority to grant permission to construct a building on the high school grounds. This building to take care of all local indoor athletics and social functions and at no expense of construction. Immediately following this meeting, work was started on an approved project, but events in town took an odd twist, a small minority did not want to see a building constructed on the school grounds and would rather have everything stopped than allow it to continue. ## GOULD BASKETBALL SEASON OPENS ON DECEMBER 14

Gorham (N. H.) High School to be First Opponent on the Season's Schedule

The Gould Academy basketball squad will soon be seen in action. Due to the illness of Coach Anderson the team has been training under Coach Myers, who has brought the team along in fine style. Mr. Anderson has taken the team in charge this week and has been driving the boys hard in an endeavor to round them into shape for the opening game with Gorham, N. H. The game will be one of the hardest for Gould as it will be their opening game, while it will be Gorham's fourth game of the season. The visitors will be a strong aggregation, with a number of veterans from last year's White Mountain League Champions.

This Friday Coach Anderson plans to have two practice games beginning at seven o'clock. The main event will be the practice game between the varsity and the Bethel Town Team. This is only a practice affair but the public is invited to attend free of charge if they wish.

GOULD ACADEMY BASKETBALL SCHEDULE 1934-1935

* Fri., Dec. 14—Gorham at Bethel
* Fri., Jan. 4—at So. Paris
* Fri., Jan. 11—Mexico at Bethel
* Fri., Jan. 18—Norway at Bethel
* Fri., Jan. 25—Farmington at Bethel
* Fri., Feb. 1—at Norway
* Fri., Feb. 8—Bridgton at Bethel
* Wed., Feb. 13—at Mexico
* Fri., Feb. 16—So. Paris at Bethel
* Fri., Feb. 22—at Bridgton
* Wed., Feb. 27—at Farmington

The above schedule is complete except that an Alumni game will be planned for some midweek during the early part of February. Farmington, a new opponent, should prove a popular attraction, as they always produce fine, clean playing teams. Instead of playing the Fryeburg second team Coach Anderson has substituted Bridgton High School varsity team.

Team Prospects

With only two veterans from last year in Bill Wight and Martinson, prospects are not exceptionally bright, although a number of last year's substitutes are showing up well. Bill Wight, a guard, is being shifted to the center position where he has been improving daily. Martinson will probably see duty again in his guard position while Frank Parsons is making a great bid for the other back position. He is a graduate of last year's "B" squad. Another "B" team man who is showing up well as a guard is Stanley Brown, who should see some service.

The forward positions are being hotly contested by Bob Browne, a letter man of last year; Erland Wentzell, up from the "B" team; and Paul Daniels a second team man of last year, Stanley Hamlin, also a letter man, may also prove his worth as a scorer. Others who are elected to the first squad from which the varsity and second teams are chosen are: Charles Smith, Dan Quimby, Clayton Coolidge, Robert King, Al Chapman, Robert Brine, O'Neil Robertson and Robert Chapman. Norwood Waterhouse is manager of the team and Maynard Young assistant.

Mrs. E. E. Bennett of Mayville received first prize for ladies, Norris Brown first for men, and second went to Mrs. Wesley Wheeler and O. B. George, Jr., at the card party sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the George A. Mundt Post, American Legion, last Friday evening. There will be another card party Friday evening, Dec. 14.

DYKE-BERRY

Word has been received of the marriage of Miss Verna S. Berdy of Bethel and Sidney Augustus Dyke of Somerville, Mass., on Nov. 29, at Elkton, Maryland.

Mrs. Dyke is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Berry of this town, a graduate of Gould Academy, and for the past three years has been employed as housekeeper at Newton, Mass.

Mr. Dyke is the son of Mrs. Anna Dyke Wright of Somerville, Mass., and Oscar Dyke of Hanover, Me. He received his education at Somerville, Mass., and Kimball High School at Rumford Center. He is now employed in the RCA radio station at Haddon Heights, N. J.

WALLACES TENDERED FAREWELL RECEPTION AT ORLEANS

The following was taken from the Orleans County (Vt.) Monitor of Nov. 28.

At the close of the Sunday morning service of the Congregational church in Orleans, Rev. H. T. Wallace read his resignation, announcing that he had accepted an invitation from the Congregational church in Bethel, Me., to become its pastor. Next Sunday will be his last service in Orleans.

It is with deep regret that his parish in Orleans and at Brownington and the community as well, lose Dr. Wallace. In the work of the women's organizations of the church Mrs. Wallace, too, will be greatly missed and in her untiring efforts with the junior choir for past two years. The Wallace family has been in Orleans nearly eight years. The good wishes of their many friends here will follow them to their new field of endeavor. Bethel is the parish made vacant by the death of Rev. L. A. Edwards last summer.

Dr. Wallace has been prominent in the councils of Congregationalism in Vermont. He has served the Orleans County Council of Congregational Churches as moderator and the Vermont Congregational Conference on its board of directors, serving as chairman of the board. Dr. Wallace has served his community in many ways, has been called upon for public addresses, often and has taught classes in the Intercommunity Fall Institute, for several years.

The church will give a farewell reception to Dr. and Mrs. Wallace at the church on Friday evening from eight to ten. A cordial invitation to be present is extended to all their friends.

P. T. A. PROGRAM

The following interesting program is promised for the next P. T. A. meeting Monday evening, Dec. 10.

Piano solo, Maxine Richardson of Norway Clog Dance, Virginia Smith Viola solo, Edgar Coolidge Talk, Rev. MacKillop of Bryant Pond

Trilo, Maxine Richardson, Mrs. Ralph Richardson, Ona Yates

A bean game will be arranged after the program, with home cooked food as prizes. Bring your pennies. The P. T. A. needs a boost in its treasury.

A Christmas party will be enjoyed at the next meeting of Sunset Rebekah Lodge on Monday evening Dec. 17. Each member will bring a gift.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Burk entertained Thanksgiving, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Clark, Mrs. Millie Clark, Mr. and Mrs. John Forbes, all of Bethel, and Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Forbes of Rumford.

Mrs. Minnie Bennett entertained the My-L-line Bridge Club Monday afternoon. Mrs. Hester Sanborn won high score. Mrs. Robina Gaudett will be the hostess when the club meets next week, entertaining at her home at Mayville.

All Real Estate taxes must be paid on or before the 19th day of Dec., 1934, to avoid costs of advertising. W. E. Bartlett, Collector.

GODDARD'S BODY FOUND ON SAND BAR NEAR BRIDGE

Roger and Emerson Clough Make Discovery Tuesday Morning—Authorities Report No Foul Play Evidence—Funeral This Morning

A search of nearly a week was completed successfully Tuesday morning when the body of Claude Goddard was recovered from a sand bar near the south side of Hastings Island. When discovered by Roger and Emerson Clough the body lay in about two feet of water at a point 800 feet or more below the steel bridge.

Mr. Goddard's disappearance was first made known on Wednesday afternoon of last week when his Chevrolet truck was discovered partially submerged in the Androscoggin river on the bank at Riverside Cemetery. He had been last seen about 5:30 the preceding afternoon. The searchers brought the body to the surface last Thursday morning, but were unable to hold it, and since that time divers had been employed and dynamite used in a vain attempt to find further trace.

The autopsy, performed by Dr. W. T. Rowe, medical examiner, of Rumford, assisted by Dr. Julius Gottlieb, pathologist, of Lewiston, and Dr. H. M. Wilson of Bethel, revealed no water in the lungs. The cause of death was concussion of the brain and shock following a hemorrhage of the pancreas. It was said that no evidence of foul play was found. His watch, which stopped at five o'clock, and $90 in bills were found in his clothing.

Private funeral services were held this morning at his late home, Rev. P. J. Clifford officiating. Bearers were comrades of Geo. A. Mundt Post, American Legion. Interment was in Riverside Cemetery.

FARWELL FAMILY REUNION ON THANKSGIVING DAY, HANOVER

One of the large gatherings on Thanksgiving day was the reunion of the family of Mrs. William L. Farwell at Union Hall, Hanover, where 29 sat down to a bountiful feast. In the center of the group was Mrs. Farwell, and on her right was her oldest daughter, Cora, accompanied by her husband, Rev. Ralph A. Sherwood, of Salem, Mass. The only living son, Wallace, of North Tewksbury, Mass., was present with his wife, Mildred, and their two daughters, Eugenia and Hazel. In addition to these the complete list included Mrs. Walter Wight and her son William and daughter Kathleen, of Bethel, Mr. and Mrs. George Pillsbury and their son, Howard of Oquossoc; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Buck and their four sons, Mervin, Raymond, Albert, and David, of Bethel; Mr. and Mrs. Chester Cummings and their daughters, Barbara and Ann of Hanover; Mr. and Mrs. Adeline Stearns and Robert and Priscilla Farwell of Bethel; and Mrs. Clara Rayford of Hanover. All of Mrs. Farwell's children and grandchildren were present except two, Miss Margaret Sherwood of Philadelphia, Pa., and Rev. Everett Sherwood of Damariscotta, Maine.

During the dinner hour much merriment was caused by the reading of original illevers applied to various members of the group, written by Mrs. Wallace Farwell and read as an answer to the group inquiry, "What's the matter with . . .?", special honor being given to the hostess, Mrs. William Farwell. During the afternoon an original playlet, "Over the Hill," arranged by Barbara Cummings and Kathleen Wight, assisted by Eugenia Farwell, was given by the children of the party. Mrs. Wallace Farwell presented part of one of her radio programs which she had given over station WLEX, and Mr. Sherwood gave a brief sketch of a trip to Europe which he and Mrs. Sherwood took last summer. This program brought to a close a very happy family reunion.

"EVERY WINTER HAD TERRIBLE COLDS"

Nurse's Grateful Letter

Mohawk, N. Y., Oct. 9. "I want to thank you for the wonderful cough and cold medicine Buckley's Mixture. I bought the first bottle last winter for the old gentleman whom I am taking care of and he has had every winter and fall terrible colds. The first dose helped and the third dose cold was gone. It does such quick work Mrs. C. Davis."

Don't take chances. Often the most stubborn, racking cough swiftly yields to the powerful influence of Buckley's Mixture (triple acting) largest selling medicine for coughs, colds and bronchitis in Canada.

Ford will leave Friday for Boston, Mass., where she will employment for the winter.

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

Sunday, Dec. 2—What a peculiar day in regard to the way the sunshine has been distributed. Sunshine here, there intense darkness, occurring many times within the area of our vision.

Who has any doubt of a shortage of water for the winter months ahead? More, then more rain, has been in evidence in the past month but tonight signs are good for a clear cloudless day tomorrow.

My South Woodstock items were very conspicuous last week, made so by their absence, which by some may have been appreciated.

The Andrews', direct descendants of the oldest families of South Woodstock; A. M. Andrews, Harland Andrews, Stanley Andrews, Linwood Andrews, and their families, spent the day of Thanksgiving with the Titus family of South Paris, Mrs. Roy Titus being formerly Miss Eva Andrews of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Davis were a part of the family group around the festive board at the Brown and Austin home, Bryant Pond.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Benson and Mrs. Benson's sister Helen were the guests of their father, Jerry Farrar, and family at Bryant Pond Thanksgiving day.

Gayden Davis and family were guests of Mrs. Davis' uncle, George Buck, and family of West Paris, who also entertained his daughter, Mrs. Dorothy Brooks, of Grafton.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Andrews, accompanied by Mrs. Andrews' sister, Miss Minnie Stevens, were the guests of Mrs. Andrews' daughter, Mrs. Robert Cleves and family of Portland on Thanksgiving day.

Harry Silver and family were guests of his mother, Mrs. Villa Silver, and family of Perkins Valley, for the day of Thanksgiving.

The Hendrickses entertained a large Thanksgiving dinner party at their home. Mr. Hendrickson has a large crew of woodsmen in his employ and all enjoyed the bountiful feast prepared and served by their host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Al Hendrickson.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Davis entertained their son, Ellis Davis, and wife for Thanksgiving dinner.

A family party was held at the Perham homestead, attended by many friends and relatives of the family for Thanksgiving dinner.

One of the larger family gatherings was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Felt, who entertained their children and grandchildren. The guest of honor was their son, Lester, who has been absent for the past three months at Orono, where he is attending the University of Maine. Lester came home with a young man whose home is in Bethel, he being also a student at the University. They returned to Orono Sunday noon, going to Lewiston by motor, from there by train back to school where both boys are greatly enjoying their school work.

Now about the deer stories. Very few deer were killed by the hunters of South Woodstock. Stan Andrews, Waini Heikkinen, Gayden Davis, and several others went up country Thanksgiving but returned empty handed. One real exciting deer hunt was staged by a dozen men who surrounded a woodlot where a deer was known to enter a few hours ahead, each taking his position as directed, one of the number, told to stand near an old wood road. Going down around he thought it best to advance up the road a short distance, which he did, meeting the deer coming down to cross a nearby bog. Taking quick aim the deer was killed, an eight point buck, by Fred Noyes of Bryant Pond. Many shots were fired to drive out the deer which led to the report that several deer were killed by the hunters.

It is cheaper to protect your car with an anti-freeze solution now, than to stand the expense of a frozen radiator or engine.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Lang and son Merle were at B. A. Lang's Thanksgiving.

Ray Hanscom went to Newry Thanksgiving.

Lamont Brooks and family were dinner guests at Ernest Brooks' Thanksgiving.

Miss Hope Ring was home from Lewiston Saturday night. Miss Ring has just returned from New York, where she has been in a children's hospital the past three months.

At a card party at the Cabin Nov. 24, 62 cents were cleared from sale, of sandwiches and coffee. There were 15 present. These parties are held and penny lunches served to get money for the Community Christmas tree and entertainment which will be held at the Cabin later.

The Christian Endeavor meeting was held at E. L. Dunham's last Tuesday evening. After the regular services a short Thanksgiving program was given, consisting of readings, quotations, special singing and a Thanksgiving story.

Doesn't seem much like December. We picked pansies Dec. 1, mayflowers Dec. 2, and saw a flock of wild geese flying north last Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Lang and Merle took supper with Mr. and Mrs. Beryl Martin, Greenwood Centre, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Packard of Portland were callers at Colby Ring's Sunday. They carried Miss Hope Ring back to Lewiston.

Masquerade Party

A masquerade party was given by members of Christian Endeavor at Colby Ring's Nov. 30. Prizes were given for the best costumes. Those winning prizes were Miss Vera Dunham as an old lady with powdered hair, dressed in black silk; Glen Martin as a young lady; Junior Martin, funniest costume. Others deserving mention were Norma Ring as a bride, Bessie Libby as groom, Winifred Bryant as Maggie, Ray Hanscom as Jiggs, Stanley Seames as Jack Johnson, Ernest Brooks as Chief advertising Cream of Wheat, Carl Brooks as hobo, Flora Swan as clown, Albert Ring and David Libby as ladies, Dwight Martin as a Chinaman.

The ladies carried boxes with lunch for two people which the gentlemen were expected to buy. Doughnuts and coffee were on sale. Violin and piano music was furnished during the evening by Mrs. Stella Ring and Mrs. Laura Seames, piano, and Mr. Marshall, violin. There were 41 present and nearly $5.00 was taken for Christian Endeavor funds.

WOODSTOCK TOWN MEETING

This viewpoint another special town meeting was called, through the medium of presenting a petition to the selectmen signed by a sufficient number to demand a warrant posted and a meeting called. This position and meeting were based upon the idea that the meeting held Oct. 8 misrepresented the facts of the cost of construction.

The town meeting was called and Henry Morgan was unanimously chosen to act as moderator. The group who called the special meeting could not show in any way how the previous meeting had been misrepresented. Two or three who had been very active in the opposition of the work of the projects tried to confuse the issue with misleading statements and incomplete quotations from outside officials. Mr. Jenkins, as local administrator, answered all questions directed to him connected with the amount of funds available and the probability of further allotments which cleared the situation as far as the larger number of voters were concerned. There seemed to be two groups against the building, one opposed because of location, that always being a bone of contention in any town where a new public building is being constructed, the other group, and they were a small minority, opposed it with their main objection that of personal revenge because of individual jealousies. There is still another group who opposed it because of the feeling spread by a small minority that the building cost would revert back to the town and therefore raise the taxes beyond their present rate. The matter of personal jealousies and prejudices could not be overcome in any open discussion or airing of views before the public. The other causes were open and enough people could see the truth of the situation when it was put before them, and understood that it would not cost the town anything. When the vote was taken it was voted by a larger majority than in the first meeting to allow construction on the school grounds of a gymnasium and public hall. The idea that Woodstock would not have any more F. E. H. A. funds after Nov. 2, was put forth several times during the meeting by the opposition of the project to try to give the impression to the voters that after that time the building construction would revert back to the town. However the idea did not carry much weight. Developments since then have proved the statements of those backing the building in that after the previous allotment ran out on Nov. 22 Woodstock has received another allotment of money to carry on its approved projects.

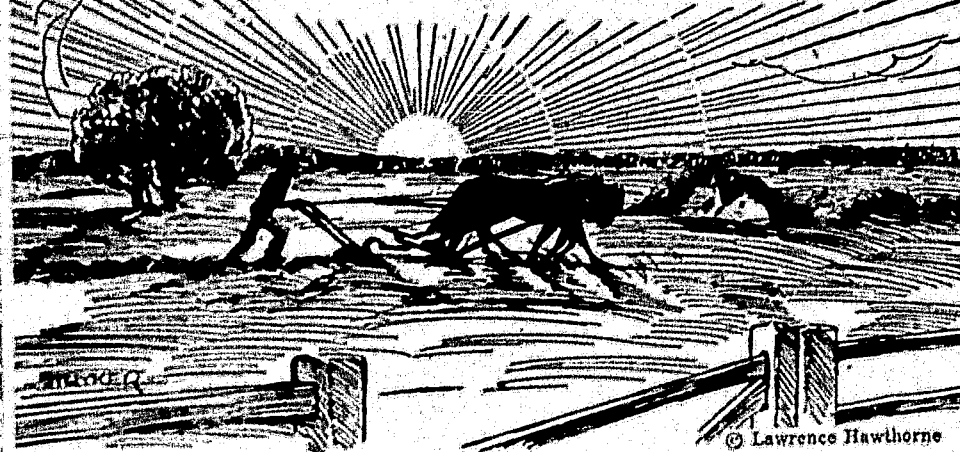

At this writing the building is well on its way to completion, the walls are up and partly boarded, the building located on the school grounds in the heart of the village where it can be viewed by anyone who wants to look it over.

Trouble an' Sunshine

by Lawrence Hawthorne

It takes a bit o' trouble now an' then
To help us learn the ways o' life, I guess;
A spell o' cloudy weather teaches men
To understand what brings 'em happiness.
No person ever yet has seen it rain
Without the sunshine comin' later on;
But some folks get the notion grief an' pain
Are here t' stay, an' every joy is gone.

Seems like there's plenty more o' cheer than care
For them that keep their spirits brave an' true;
Seems like the days 're mostly bright an' fair,
An' clouds don't often cover all the blue!
An' so, a bit o' trouble now an' then
Should help us prize our blessin's all the more;
An' when good-luck is greetin' us again
We'll find things even brighter than before!

GOULD ACADEMY
NOTES

The Academy opened Monday, Dec. 3, after the Thanksgiving vacation which began last Thursday.

The many friends of Coach Anderson are glad to note that he has recovered from his recent illness and is able to resume his school duties.

The pupils of Anton Eugene Malenke gave a recital in the William Bingham Gymnasium Tuesday evening, Dec. 4. Individual and group numbers were rendered in an efficient manner and reflected much credit on the instruction of Mr. Malenke who devotes several days a week to teaching music in the New England Conservatory of Music in Boston. The program of selections was similar to that published in last week's Citizen.

Miss Dorothy Hanscom, Coach of Girls' Basketball, has issued a call for candidates for the team, and the following large squad are working out in regular practice sessions under the direction of their coach: Seniors: S. Merrill, J. Linson, E. Dean, B. Soule, H. Philbrook, M. Hamlin, B. Leighton, M. Sanborn, D. Hutchinson, B. Bartlett, Juniors: D. Harvey, E. Hunt, M. Berry, D. Irish, R. Rowe, B. Raynes, S. King, P. The senior class at a recent meeting discussed the possibility of serving hot lunches at the school as a class project. The idea seems to have met with considerable enthusiasm on the part of the student body as it means the possibility of securing something hot to go with an otherwise cold lunch.

Bernard Cushman, a member of the senior class, who has been absent from school because of illness, is now attending classes regularly.

Miss Stevens, director of prize-speaking, reports much progress is being made and that the contest will be held as soon as possible following the Christmas recess.

The MAINE MEETING PLACE
by EARLE DOUCETTE

At last, by gravy, we are right in style here in Maine. We have a "plan." This puts us right up with the biggest apples in the barrel because "plans" of one kind or another are in very high favor just now on this palpitating planet of ours, it being as grave a social error to be without a "plan" as it is for a gentleman to be without socks.

Our Maine "plan" has nothing in common with other "plans" of the moment such as, for instance, the Five Year Plan of the Russians. Our "plan" is built around the groundwork of Americanism, Democracy, or Capitalism, whichever you wish to call it.

Specifically, it is called the Maine Prosperity Plan and is simply an enlargement of a practice that has been a paying proposition for all of us for a number of years. It is, to all appearances, foolproof and cannot fail to "click," as the boys say. In other states where somewhat similar "plans" are in operation it has meant the difference between destitution and prosperity for a large proportion of the inhabitants.

Our "plan" is built around the truism that it pays to advertise if one has a product to sell that is as good, or better, than his competitor. Advertising is a factor in our lives that is—to borrow Mr. Einstein's words—comparatively new. We all remember years ago of hearing about the fellow who built mouse traps away back in the woods and how the seekers after the best exterminators beat a path to his door. Not many know, however, that this trap artist died of starvation because his competitor drove him out of business by advertising in the Mousetrap News.

Here in Maine we have what a large percentage of the population of the United States apparently want—ideal vacation climate and facilities; superb farm and sea products; manufactured goods that are unequalled.

Hitherto, we have spent only $50,000 a year in advertising these assets of which recreation alone nets us a yearly "take" of around $85,000,000. This advertising appropriation is so much smaller than that of other states that the comparison is ridiculous. It does not begin to carry the glad tidings of what we have to offer here in Maine to our fellow countrymen throughout the United States. All of which brings us back to the "plan" which is simply this—

Suppose we appropriate $250,000 for advertising Maine. We, with this money, can build up a demand for Maine agricultural products that will assure the farmer of getting something more for his efforts than just the exercise. We can persuade thousands of people to summer in our glorious State who have never been here previously. We can create more and bigger markets for our unequalled sea and shore product. We can—by these and other ways—create profitable employment for many of our people who are now unemployed.

But where—you say—will $250,000 come from? Can we spend that amount right

I wonder if we can afford spend it. Again, I wonder if it is the right word. Somehow "invest" would be better for fairly well established that the amount of money men would pour back into our from the increase in gasoline revenue alone. And the gas the final analysis, is only small part of what tourists in Maine.

Briefly, the Maine Plan is logical, and workable. It has favor with farmers, business professional men and others, hardly fail to pass the congressional legislature if the people of realize its potentialities.

GIFT VALUES are GREATEST here!

The Citizen

For one who knows Bethel and its neighbor towns there is no better gift than a year's subscription to The Oxford County Citizen.

Its correspondents give each week a chronicle of the happenings in their communities.

News of general interest in the County and many items of State news are weekly features.

Each year about a hundred poems are published, many of these of the old-fashioned "heart-throbs" kind that you want to keep in your scrap book.

Four serial stories appear each year and many short stories.

Read this issue carefully—make a list of your friends who want to know the home news—and give a subscription as a Christmas remembrance.

E MEETIN LIFE DOUCETTE

But where—you say—will $250,000 come from? Can we spend that amount right? I wonder if we can afford it. Again, I wonder if it is the right word. Somehow "invest" would be better for fairly well established that the amount of money would pour back into our from the increase in gasol revenue alone. And the gas the final analysis, is only small part of what tourists in Maine.

Briefly, the Maine Plan is logical, and workable. It has favor with farmers, business professional men and others hardly fail to pass the committee if the people of realize its potentialities.

BE A BOOSTER

Do you know there's lots o' people settin' round in every town, growin' like a broody chicken, knockin' every good thing down? Don't you be that kind o' cattle, 'Cause they ain't no use on earth; You just be a booster rooster, Crow and boost for all you're worth.

If you know some feller's fallin', or; Don't hold back and wait to see if some other fellow's willin'—Sail right in, this country's free. No one's got a mortgage on it, It's just yours as much as his; If your town is shy on boosters, You get in the bootin' biz.

If things just don't seem to suit you, And the world seems kinder wrong, What's the matter with a boostin' Just to help the thing along? 'Cause if things should stop again, We'd be in a sorry plight; You just keep that horn blowin'—Boost 'er up with all your might.

If you know some feller's fallin', Just forget 'em, cause you know That same feller's got some good points, Them's the ones you want to show. 'Cast your loaves on the waters, They'll come back," a sayin' true; Mebbe, too, they'll come back buttered, When some feller boosts for you.

OLD ALCOHOL'S CONFESSION

Come, Alcohol, now answer me Four questions I shall put to thee: What is thy age? What is thy aim? What is thy trade? What is thy name?

My age, it is a thousand years; My aim, to fill the earth with tears; My trade, to kill and make expense; My name, it is Intemperance. Long have I ruled upon the earth, To many a crime I have given birth. I am Father of much grief and woe, I spread distress where'er I go. My dwelling place is at the bar, My customers are near and far. I fill their heads and drain their purse And turn their blessings to a curse. I daily breathe out poisonous breath, My drink is liquid fire and death. My lodging place is Satan's seat, My food is filth and serpent's meat. My face is covered with a mask, My hiding place is in the cask. My business is to gender strife And put asunder man and wife. I visit grog shops all around Where Satan is I am always found. I am his waiter, day and night, His service is my chief delight.

THE DAY'S WORK

The Denver Republican

It isn't what you mean to do a week ahead, It isn't what you know you'll gain When all annoyances have fled; It isn't what you dreamed and planned—Such hopes are but a phantom band—

The day's work counts. The day's work counts—The foot you've gained Since yonder sun dispelled the dark; Next week, next month, next year are vain—Vain the present summons bark; Now have you fared ahead since morn'—

Is garnering life's oil and corn? The day's work counts. The gain of those few painful hours; Not be content if there is shown Some product of those sacred powers Which guide each mind, uphold each hand, Strive with the best at your command—

The day's work counts.

BEAR RIVER GRANGE ELECTS OFFICERS

Bear River Grange met in regular session Saturday evening, Dec. 1st with Worthy Master Daniel Wight in the chair. Under new business the letting of the Hall was left with a committee, L. E. Wight, F. I. French and Fred Kilgore. It was thought best not to continue dances but the following committee was appointed to arrange for a whist party: P. O. Brinck, E. E. Bennett and C. F. Saunders. Reports of the Secretary, Treasurer and Finance Committee were read and accepted. Officers elected for 1935 are as follows:

Master—P. O. Brinck
Overseer—R. M. Bean
Lecturer—Edw. Bennett
Steward—Robert Davis
Assistant Steward—Willard Wight
Chaplain—S. P. Davis
Treasurer—E. L. Holt
Secretary—L. E. Wight
Gate Keeper—Roy Tripp
Ceres—Ella Brinck
Pomona—Bertha Bean
Flora—Frances Davis
Lady Assistant Steward—Mary Bean

Executive Committee—Daniel Wight
The Willing Workers sewing circle of the Grange having been organized, Sister Saunders, who is Secretary, announced a Circle Supper at her home Wednesday night, Dec. 12. The price for the supper is right and Sister Saunders expects a good crowd.

The program consisted of Roll Call, each member telling what breed of cows they thought best for the locality. There were 21 members present. The refreshments were pop corn and apples.

NORTH NEWRY

Leslie Fuller of Norway, formerly of this town, is visiting his brother, Colon Fuller.

Mrs. Perry Judkins and children of Andover were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Judkins.

WILSON'S MILLS

Work on the Wilson's Mills to Cupaupit road was resumed Nov. 6th for an eight week period. It is surprising to see what a long piece of road is all built and graveled and a still longer piece with the timber cut, the rocks drilled and blasted and piled up along side of the right of way and the road graded ready for gravel. This has all been done with a few men and a power shovel in 12 30-hour weeks.

It rained here hard all day and part of the night Saturday.

The ice went out of the lake Thursday night and George Nason, John Turner and Mr. Swentl came down the lake in a canoe Dec. 1.

Bert Smith was down the lake from Sunday Pond Sunday forenoon and returned Sunday night.

Lester Littlehale Jr. has the cast off his arm which he broke some time ago and can now use his arm.

Little Norman Littlehale, who has been sick, is much better and has gone with his mother to Sabattus to visit her people.

Miss Mann, our high school teacher, is now boarding at Leon Bennett's.

Mr. Emerson of Magalloway has a pair of horses at work on the new road here. Darwin Swentl of Errol is driving them for him.

John West spent Thanksgiving day and the week end with his mother in Berlin.

Mrs. Vitella Hsley has returned to her home in Errol. Clarence West was in Paris Sunday.

Mrs. George Nason returned from jury work at South Paris Nov. 28, and is visiting her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Hart.

"Peered about in his short-circuited way. "It is upset, isn't it? Did you get it straightened out before they come?"

"Straightened out! The paper on—"

"No hurry. You'll know why when you hear Rod's letter. That you want to hear it. It came alone—with this."

"He held out the white box.

"For me?" Prudence looked at it without touching it.

"Your name is Prudence Schuyler, isn't it? Take it. Come down those steps. Don't look at it as you expected it concealed a job."

"Prudence set the box on the table, and strings, and removed wraps."

"Oh-o! How beautiful!"

"Prudence clasped her hands in ecstasy as she looked down at the stemmed roses in the open box. She lifted two of the lovely blossoms to her face.

"Rod certainly has said it with others this time," Armstrong objected gruffly.

"What?" Prudence demanded and promptly wished she had asked the question.

"Your innocence is good but not enough, Prue. Want to hear my letter? I'm in a hurry."

"Of course I want to hear it! Jean, take the roses to Jane Mack and ask her to put them in vases. Take to the shop, Jim."

"Armstrong followed Prudence into the room. As she perched on the stool in front of the tool-littered table, he frowned at the open safe.

"Do you leave that unlocked? You are a guard, isn't it? It would be unsafe for someone to pick up these unsent letters you told me you owned. I want to frighten you, but that escaped convict is still at large."

"You may ease your mind to learn that you and David and Jean—and other, I did tell Rodney Gerwade—are the only persons who know where those unsent stones."

"Four! It's four too many. He's bound to be one broader than he is. Keep the safe locked. Wait! Gerard still putting on the old father act? He has, as I expected, lost his job. Why is he hanging round this town? I don't like his eyes. They are furtive."

"He is here on one pretext or another every day. He pretends that he is here—'I've heard his oblique before—but I know that's not. And it isn't a paternalistic which brings him, I'll wager a bet bit of jade."

"Does he annoy you?"

"Don't roar. He annoys me by his time which I want to use to work. I have several business orders besides this necklace—I'm making for Jean of these—and I haven't touched my pen since David left until this minute. Now, Jim, the letter."

"An instant there was no more."

ound in the room but the tick of the clock. Armstrong pushed his spectacles up on his forehead as he began to read.

"Dear Jim—

"Have waited before writing for something definite to report. Don't dare wire or phone for fear Calloway will get on to our plan, so am sending this by plane. Schuyler is none the worse for the activities of the last week—we've kept on the move—on the contrary, the interest and excitement quite set him up.

"When Schuyler and I arrived at the mission, he received an ovation which set the radiator rattling in its lair. I've met individual down-and-outers, but never before have seen them en masse. The place smelled to heaven of damp wool and unwashed humans, I confess that for a minute I flinched, but not David Schuyler. He was in their midst, beaming, encouraging, but never, apparently, condemning.

"The men quailed down after a while and David explained our plan. Then he called for volunteers to go back with us and stick—he was emphatic on sticking—until the timber was cut.

"About twenty-five lined up, and their expressions as they looked at David Schuyler tied my throat up in a hard knot. If anyone questions whether his work in the mission has paid, that bunch is the answer.

"Send back word by the pilot if the accommodations are ready. Make it snappy. Dave and I will come by train with the—well, we can hardly call them a crew yet, gang is a better word. We don't dare let them out of our sight. If you write O. K. we'll arrive tomorrow afternoon."

Armstrong looked up. "With your brother staying at High Ledges, no need to rush the papering. Here's a message for you:

"Tell Prue, if you see her,—that "If" is my little joke,—that her special boy friends, Terry McGowan and Shance O'Shea, are in our personally conducted party. Love to the Kurious Kid.

Yours,
Rod."

Armstrong folded the letter. "The pilot left an hour ago with my letter telling Rod to come on with the gang. Calloway is too keen not to know of the work going on at High Ledges, he must suspect Rod's plan, but, just the same, I wish he might be providentially called out of town an hour or so before that train arrives."

Prudence shook her head. "Perhaps you'll think I have a four cylinder mind when it comes to experimenting—but—I'm afraid Rodney Gerard will be frightfully disappointed when he tries to make those men work."

"I'm not. Rod has—better say had—a lazy manner, but he has developed into a hard-hitting, daring business man. He's a dynamo when he gets his mind made up."

A picture flashed on the screen of Prue's mind: Rodney Gerard standing in the sunshine before the big barn; she could smell the scent of the hay, see his eyes deepen to indigo, hear his voice, low, controlled, declaim:

"I'm not in that class you detest. I'll make you take back what you said about my being of that type. I'll make you! It will be a no-quarter battle. Get me?"

She had been on the verge of taking it back when Milly Gooch had—

"Would Jenn and I complicate matters, Jim, if from a discreet distance we watched the arrival of David and his followers?"

"Not if you keep out of sight. I'll drop in this evening to report. Take it easy, Prue. Don't rush to finish that paper."

When he had gone, Prudence laid her face against the crimson beauty of the roses and drew a long breath of their fragrance. Lovely things! It wasn't their fault that a man whom she disliked and distrusted had sent them. Jim Armstrong didn't know that "saying it with flowers" was a habit with Rodney Gerard.

"What will you do first, Miss Prue?"

Jean's question brought Prue's attention back to the present. With long pincers she began, to poke among the colorful tourmalines.

"As there is no need to hurry about getting the living room in order, I'll put in an hour at my bench. Change of work will rest me. Bring me the stones from the safe, will you, Jean?"

"Goody, I love to look at them!"

"Miss Prue!" Jane Mack appeared in the doorway. "The market man phoned. He wants eggs and wants them quick. He has a rush order, and he says, can you bring them right down to the village."

Prudence dropped the pincers and pulled off the painty smock. "Of course we can, Macky. Come on, Jean, we'll gather the eggs. Put the packets of stones in the safe, will you, Macky? Don't lock it. Leave the tourmalines on the bench. I may have time to select the colors when I return."

It was somewhat difficult to make a domestic career and an artistic career jibe. Prudence decided an hour later in her shop, as again she slipped into her smock. She had brought the paper hanger from the village. David might decide to come to the red brick house instead of going to High Ledges, she had reasoned, and it would be better to have the living room in order. She picked up the pincers and commenced to experiment with the tourmalines on a penciled design.

"This sketch isn't right. Bring my portfolio from the bookcase, will you, Jean?"

"All-righty."

Prudence poked and fitted. No combination of stones suited her. She called over her shoulder:

"Can't you find it? It ought to be on the bottom shelf."

"Where did you get this?"

"Get what?" Prudence turned. Jean was staring at the newspaper picture of Rodney Gerard and Milly Gooch.

"This. It's a picture of the same cutesy circus rider I found in Uncle Rod's desk in the gun room at High Ledges. She's written—I suppose she wrote them—some slushy words on the back. Stopped with just 1 o. Why didn't she finish it?"

A laugh, a hateful laugh, cut into her excited question. Jean stared at her father in the doorway; the clipping fluttered to his feet.

"So you found a picture in your uncle's desk? Prying again, my darling daughter?" He mimicked his wife's tone. "What happened to the photograph with the word love unfinished?"

Jean gulped. Her eyes appealed to Prudence who put her arm about the thin shoulders.

"Answer your father, dear."

"I—I think Mr. Calloway took it."

"Calloway! Can't you talk without gulping? Calloway has it? Jean, there are times when I'm tempted to—" He took a step toward her. As his daughter crushed her face against Prue's shoulder, he laughed.

"Don't be afraid. For a minute I saw red. I hate that man Calloway like the devil. He doesn't love your Uncle Rodney, and with that picture in his possession he can make trouble for him."

His shifting eyes rested for an instant on the tourmalines shooting rays of color as the sunlight touched them. He whistled, a long low whistle.

"Where did those come from? Did a traveling jeweler drop from the everywhere?"

Prudence held a stone to the light.

"Nice color, isn't it?"

He took the pincers from her hand and held up the stone. "Nice! It's a corker. Interesting work you're doing. Do you use precious stones as well?"

Prudence nodded toward the safe. "Yes. In there I have a flawless emerald, a pigeon blood ruby, and a star sapphire with a number of diamonds. All of them, except the emerald, I bought at a bargain before the Schuyler Income went down for the third time. I have more money tied up in gems than I can afford."

"Do you like the jewels in this house?"

"Why not?"

He laid the tourmaline back on the white paper. "Why not, is right. I forgot when I asked the question that for years the residents of this village haven't locked their doors at night. Have you heard when Rod is coming back?"

"I haven't heard from your brother nor from mine, except a postcard of the Metropolitan museum with 'Feeling fine,' scrawled on it. As a letter writer David is a total loss."

"I suppose you have no idea what's being done to the old cattle barn?"

"Why not ask your brother? It is his property."

"I can wait for developments, and believe me, they'll come fast. Well, I'll get along." He glanced at the safe. "Better keep that locked. There is a convict on the loose, remember." He turned on his heel and departed.

Farming might be thrilling, but it certainly took a lot of energy and strength when one was new at it. Prudence reflected, as later in the evening she flung herself on the couch in the firelighted living room.

Her eyes went to the red roses as if drawn by a magnet. Feeling as she did about Rodney Gerard—hadn't Jean's disclosure about Milly Gooch's photograph crystalized her suspicions into unshakable conviction—she should have thrown them away. Lovely things. It wasn't their fault that—was it the paint which made her eyelids so heavy? Perhaps—

"Miss Prue! Miss Prue!"

A scream or a nightmare? Prudence stumbled to her feet. She had been dozing.

"Miss Prue!"

What looked to be a mammoth stick of plink and white striped candy shot down the bannister. Jean and Prue reached the threshold of the workroom together. A wobbling flashlight clutched in her bony hand revealed wild-eyed Jane Mack robed in a long white nightgown, buttoned close to throat and wrists.

"Light the lamp, Jean," said Prudence.

Jane Mack clutched her shoulder. "No! No! The convict might see and s-shoot. I know folks."

"Pull yourself together. Wait till I've drawn the hangings, Jean."

"Don't go near those windows, Miss Prue."

"Nonsense, Macky. All right, Jean. Light the lamp."

Spooky shadows east by the wavering flashlight skulked into corners as a soft glow suffused the room.

"That's better. The light will send your bad dream hustling, Macky. Sit down and tell us what happened."

Jane Mack twisted her bony hands. Jean, in her candy-striped pajamas, put her arm about Prue's waist. The woman sniffed.

"You two girls think I've had a dream, don't you? Well, I haven't. I was just getting into bed—I thought I heard a door creak down here. I stole down quietly. I didn't want to scare you. I tip-toed to this door. A man was flashing a light over that!" She pointed a blanched finger toward the safe.

"You'd left it unlocked."

"I knew in a minute 'twas the escaped prisoner I'd been expecting. I guess I gurgled. He pulled his hat lower over his eyes. Pointed his light straight at my face, so I couldn't see anything."

"Got you covered. Make a s-s-sound, woman, an' I'll s-s-shoot!" he hissed.

Prudence's eyes widened with incredulity. Could this vibrant, dramatic woman be the taciturn, dour spinster who cooked and scrubbed for her every day?

Jane Mack swallowed hard. "All I could think of was the money you had tied up in those jewels, Miss Prue, an' what 't'would mean if you lost them. What was this old body of mine good for, anyway? So I yelled."

"I'll say you yelled. Then what did the man do?" Jean demanded.

"Did he shoot?"

"If he did, I didn't know it."

"Perhaps he sneaked in to look around because he was born here or his father died here; we haven't had one of those old-timers drop in on us for a week."

Jane Mack sniffed. "Better look and see if the 'old-timer' got any of your jewels."

"Never mind the jewels, Macky. I deserve to lose them for forgetting to close the safe. Sure you are not hurt."

"Sure, Miss Prue."

Jean was on her knees before the safe frantically examining the white packets when Prudence reached it. She looked up with frightened eyes. "Gone!" she whispered.

"What's gone?"

"The emerald and diamonds!"

"You ought to set the sheriff after that convict," Jane Mack insisted for the third time the next afternoon.

At the kitchen table Prudence was snipping the stems of the roses before placing them in vases of fresh water. Impulsively she put an arm about Jean's shoulder and hugged her as the child drew a long, hard breath. She knew what she was thinking, knew that she was remembering the look in her father's eyes as he had asked if the jewels were kept in the house. Of course, Walter Gerard had not stolen the gems, he wouldn't fall so low as that, but—

"I'll wait until Mr. David comes, Macky. He will be here so soon that we had better consult him before we enter complaint."

"Well, of course, if you can afford to lose that emerald and the diamonds, Miss Prue, it's up to you. If you'd see what I saw in my tea-cup this morning—" With a sniff Jane Mack disappeared into the pantry.

Washington Monument Is Plumb, Though Settling

The Washington monument, in the National Capital, furnishes the longest settlement record available to engineers. It was planned to place the monument at the intersection of the north-south and east-west axis of the city, but that site proved swampy so the site was moved to a sandy mound nearby. The early records are not available, but observations have been made since 1870. One hundred and fifty feet of the monument was erected when work stopped in 1854. Before its height was increased a new foundation was placed under it. It was then raised to its present height of 550 feet. At the 150 feet height it weighed 81,152 tons and completed 81,129 tons. The monument settled two and a quarter inches in the year 1870, when 30,000 tons weight were added, and by 1885 it had doubled this amount, when another 30,000 tons were added.

Since that time the rate of settlement has slowed up considerably, but the total has been increased by one inch, making a total of five and six-tenths inches in 65 years. It is expected to continue to settle for some time as it has been ascertained that there is a compressible bed of clay underlying the gravel on which it is built varying in thickness from 10 to 40 feet. Bed rock is at a depth of 60 feet below sea level and 100 feet below the feet of the monument. The monument has settled quite uniformly and the structure is nearly plumb.

Site for Great Chicago Housing Project

This is a view of the region in Chicago, 37 blocks in extent, that has been selected by the federal government for an immense housing project. The buildings will be razed and modern houses and apartment buildings will be constructed to house about 15,000 persons. Most of the present residents are Italians.

WALTER C. WINTER

Walter Winter is well remembered by friends in Bethel. At the close of the Civil War his father moved to Bethel and opened a law office here. He had not been here long when he was suddenly stricken and died, leaving a wife and the two sons, Frank and Walter. They attended school here and cared for their invalid mother until she passed away in 1874. They fitted for college at Gould Academy, graduated from Bowdoin College, and went West, where they taught school for a time and then engaged in the law business in LaCrosse, Wisconsin. The following is taken from the LaCrosse Tribune.

Attorney Walter C. Winter, 77, a member of the La Crosse bar, died suddenly of apoplexy Thursday evening (Nov. 22) at the home of his brother, Frank Winter, 1629 Madison street.

Mr. Winter was born August 4, 1857, at Dixfield, Maine. He was graduated from Bowdoin in 1883. He was an athlete in college, stroke out of the boat crew and first baseman of the baseball nine. He was a member of Theta Delta Chi fraternity, its presiding officer and president of his class.

Immediately after graduation he came west and taught for one year as principal of schools at Kilbourn, and later at Kowance, after which he studied law with Judge Morrow of Sparta, and was admitted to the bar in 1887. Then he became a member of the law firm of Winter, Each and Winter.

For some years he was a member of the board of supervisors, and for the last two years of his term its chairman, resigning to become supervisor of assessors, which office he held for four years. Afterwards he was a member of the assessment board of La Crosse.

He was a member of the John P. Linton Lodge of the Knights of Pythias and a Dokkey, holding various offices in the society. He was also a member of the Robert Hughes Camp of the Sons of Veterans, and an officer of the head camp.

Mr. Winter accidentally fell some years ago, and since then has been in poor health.

He is survived by his brother, Frank, with whom he lived, and by cousins at Black River Falls and Augusta.

Nail in Dam Marks River's Water Level

Riverton, Ind. — Thirty-seven years ago, Dave Taylor, veteran ferryman, drove a large nail in the Wabash river dam here when the river reached its lowest level.

During the dry seasons in the past 25 years Taylor has compared the river's level with that of 1897. The best he was able to do was to feel the nail under water.

Recently Taylor went to the dam and saw the nail. He said the water would have to drop only one-half an inch to reach the 1897 level.

"God The Only Cause and Creator" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon to be read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Sunday, Dec. 9. Among the citations from the Bible is the following: "Know therefore this day, and consider it in thine heart, that the Lord he is God in heaven above, and upon the earth beneath: there is none else" (Deut. 4:39).

The Lesson-Sermon also includes passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, one of which reads: "The substance, Life, Intelligence, Truth, and Love, which constitute Deity, are reflected by His creation; and when we subordinate the false testimony of the corporeal sense to the facts of Science, we shall see this true likeness and reflection everywhere" (p. 516).

ANNIE M. YATES

Oct. 19, 1886 Nov. 25, 1934
Relatives received word Wednesday from Los Angeles, Calif., of the death of Annie M. Yates, R. N., formerly of Milan, N. H. Miss Yates succumbed after several months illness.

As a trained nurse she was well known in Milan and Gorham, N. H., having nursed in many families. She will also be remembered by many in Bethel, having attended the schools here.

She received her training in the County Hospital in Los Angeles and served very efficiently in that hospital for 20 years, a greater part of that time as head nurse in the maternity ward, where she was honored and loved by all.

She is survived by her mother, Mrs. Lizzie Yates; one brother, Walter B. Yates, and family; also several aunts, uncles, and cousins to mourn their loss.

Born

In Bethel, Dec. 2, to the wife of Herbert R. Rowe, a daughter, Margery Paulina.

Married

In Upton, Dec. 2, Edgar Worster and Miss Madeline Barnett.

In Berlin, N. H., Dec. 5, by Rev. Henry C. Stallard, Wendell O. Polley of Berlin and Miss Harriet Bettina Sawyer of Berlin, formerly of Bethel.

In Elkton, Md., Nov. 29, Sidney Dyke of Somerville, Mass., and Miss Verna Berry of Bethel.

Died

In Los Angeles, Calif., Nov. 28, Miss Annie M. Yates, formerly of Bethel, aged 48 years.

In La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 22, Walter C. Winter, formerly of Bethel, aged 77 years.

In Albany, Nov. 28, Isaac Wardwell, aged 81 years.

In Portland, Dec. 3, Leland B. Lane, native of Sumner, aged 75 years.

In Lewiston, Nov. 30, Mrs. Mary Kinsman of Bryant Pond, aged 89 years.

In Paris, Dec. 1, Mrs. Florence A., wife of William A. Parlin, aged 81 years.

In Norway, Dec. 1, Thomas Brad-62 years.

Relatives in town have received news of the marriage of Herford Bean, son of Lieut. Wm. C. Bean, a native of Bethel and summer visitor here, and Miss Betty Carroll, both of Albany, N. Y. Mr. Bean is employed by the Highway Department and Mrs. Bean in the Tax Department at Albany.

HERE AND THERE IN MAINE

It was announced Monday the Lisbon spinning mill will be closed and dismantled. Some of the equipment will be moved to Carolina and some to Alabama. The mill has been in constant operation since 1867 when it was established by Nathaniel W. well.

A lump of ambergris weighing over 14 pounds and valued at $1000 has been found on the shore of Roderick Crandall, an Isleboro. It is very seldom that ambergris is found in northern waters.

Mrs. Annie McCarthy Hinkle West Farmington was instantly killed Sunday afternoon when she was struck by a car operated by Miss Dorothy Russell of Farmington, a teacher at Gorham. Miss Russell was held blameless; she said the sun on the windshield blinded her.

Mrs. Amanda Leavitt Pratt Roswell Leavitt, sister and brother of Turner, celebrated their 50th and 51st birthdays Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alpheus Andrews North Paris celebrated their wedding anniversary last Friday. John E. L. Huse of Bath has notified that he has been named as principal appointee to the Military Academy at West Point Senator Hale.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE*CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH

The Thanksgiving services at the Christian Science Church Thursday evening were well attended. Following singing of hymn 239, "We Thank Thee, Heavenly Father," the proclamation of Governor was read. The scriptural reading was from the 29th and 30th of Psalm. This was followed by lent prayer and the Lord's Prayer with its spiritual interpretation. Readings from the Bible Science and Health followed. Hymns were given of gratefulness for healing or other benefits received. The service ended with hymn 196, "Shepherd Show Me the Way to Go."
